The Centre for Development Economics and the Department of Economics at the Delhi School of Economics organized Winter School 2007, which was conducted over the period December 14-17, 2007 at the Department of Economics, Delhi School of Economics.

The Winter School consisted of lectures on frontier areas of economics by three invited speakers and shorter research talks by a number of other scholars from India and abroad. Apart from these participating scholars, the Winter School was attended by a number of other scholars and students.

It was an honour for the Winter School to have the special invited lectures delivered by Professor Eric Maskin (Institute of Advanced Study, Princeton), Professor Charles Kahn (University of Illinois, Urbana Champaign), and Professor Atsushi Kajii (Kyoto University). Professor Maskin's participation was, of course, a special honour as the Winter School was among his first engagements after getting the Nobel Prize. Details of the talks are available on the CDE website (<http://www.cdcdse.org>).

The organizers are very grateful to all the other speakers, participants and sponsors (The Econometric Society, Swiss Reinsurance, and Institute for Financial Management & Research, Chennai) who helped to make the Winter School a successful scholarly event.
